

- astromart.com A pay site with a fifteen dollar a year subscription fee. It has used and new telescopes, parts, focusers, etc. It is a division of Anacorte.. Various categories for different types of items. You can shop the ads without paying.
- cloudynights.com* A free buy, sell and trade site. It has some good forums for information and questions. Various categories for different types of items.
- ebay.com* Under "used telescopes". What you see is what you get and buyer beware.
- astrogizmos.com * A retail site with all kinds of different stuff. Red lights, kick me notes, etc.
- jimsmobile.com A retail site with high end items. Focusers, telescopes, hard cases, scope buggies. High quality gear and you pay for it.
- scopestuff.com* A retail sight with lots of "odds and ends" screws, thumb-screws, telrad bases, adapters, good pricing and easy to deal with.
- bobsknobs.com Collimation knobs and heavier springs for various telescopes. A good place to do business with, knowledgeable and easy to get in touch with.
- telescopes.com One of the Hayneedle internet based retailers. Usual telescopes, and accessories.
- telescopes.net The internet store of Woodland Hills camera and telescope. Big plus is if you order early enough you can often get it the next day.
- oriontelescopes.com The internet store of Orion telescopes and accessories.
- optcorp.com The internet store of Ocean Pacific Telescopes.
- astronomy-mall.com/astro.parts.outlet/
The site of Don Rothman. He lives in Frazier Park and has a big collection of used parts, eyepieces, and you name it. He is buying and selling all the time so the inventory will change.
- astronomy-mall.com A big list of suppliers for most anything you can think of in astronomy.